MANHOOD

IN THE

YOUNG AND RISING GENERATION.

If the vital principles of life are strong but in a few years will be seen the pallid hue the lack lustre eye and the premature form and the impossibility of applying the mental effort show their baneful influence. Soon the more evident to the observer that some depressing influences in checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent to the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever changeyness of the city, the powers of the body too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the malady is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the irregulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Vital increase of appetite has grown by what it feed on. The energies of the system are prostrated and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety and fancies he grieve but waiting for its victim.

HELMHOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Specks Flying before the Eyes with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more Miserable to such patients than Solitude and nothing they more dread for fear of themselves. The repose of manner no earnestness, the slightest but a hurried transition from one thought to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON, WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES—SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum this same result occurred to two patients. Reason had for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those fearful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths by Consumption bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibition appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite lost; the neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguiled."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Price $1 25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

I select this from many letters received this year regarding my new latest improved Lightning Saws of 1871 pattern. The house, Messrs Evenson, Frisselle & Co., Syracuse, N Y, are known for their high character. They deal largely with farmers and lumbermen.

Mr E M BOYNTON, 78 Beekman st, N Y—Sir: The ninth shipment of your Cross-Cuts and Wood Saws to us this season arrived last Wednesday. Please send us 50 more Lightning Cross-Cut Saws soon as possible. The sale of your Saws continues good, and we are nearly out. We shall require fully 500 Lightning Cross Cuts and as many Wood Saws to complete our year's purchases. We would like to have you reduce the price if you can still keep up their unrivaled quality of manufacture. We should have sold more only we have been overstocked with other varieties of patent clearing-teeth saws, and have been obliged to sell your Saws at an advance of 50 per cent over any other yet many will have no other saw but yours. Our customers say the Lightning Saw saves the difference of cost in one day's use, are more simple to sharpen and run easier than any other. We think your new patent Mooth Saws do surpass in speed in ease, in simplicity, and perfect clearness anything we ever saw, and we are ready to indorse your challenge of $500, to settle by public contest their superiority over any other saw in the world, which, of course, no one can question.

EVERSON, FRISSELLE & Co

In accordance with the above, I have reduced the retail price from $1 25 to $1 per foot, and the trade price proportionately, and solicit the patronage of the American public. Beware of worthless imitations and infringements which will be prosecuted. Do not confound this 1871 pattern with my old 1867 pattern Clearing-Tooth Saws, now out of market. All clearing teeth are complicated, as they require to be kept shorter than cutters and frequent readjustment. After much experience, I cannot recommend them. Each one of the new Lightning Cross-Cuts has my $500 challenge, and full directions for setting and sharpening any saw, engraved on it. Honest hardware men will procure the genuine for their customers, even if they are overstocked with inferior goods, but where they do not keep them, Agents are wanted. A six-foot Cross-Cut and Buck Saw sent on receipt of $6. Express will cost from 40 cents to $1 to places this side of the Mississippi River by special contract.

N B Millions of Axes are used for cutting wood, a Lightning Cross-Cut Saw, either for one man or for two, will cut five times as fast as an axe. Why not try them?

Ordinary saw-set and a flat file only required in sharpening the saw, as all teeth alike to same length and simple as handsaw teeth, producing freest cutting both ways. See that the name and warrant are on each saw.

Important Notice

to

Ship Owners.

AMERICAN LLOYDS OFFICE,
Barton Blk, New York,
Jan. 11, 1871.

The Register for 1871 is now ready. The January Supplements will contain the introduction to the history of the "Register." In order to supply the demand for the Expedition, an extra edition will be printed, and furnished gratuitously to all parties in possession of a book called the "Record," or a book called the "American Lloyds Universal."

HARRIGORN & KING.

The American Lloyds Register, being the acknowledged standard of American surveys of shipping, approved by underwriters generally, and accepted by the British Lloyds Register as a standard for the United States, is now published in two volumes, viz: The Collection of Rules for classification, and the Register of Shipping, containing the vessels throughout the United States, &c., &c. It is important to owners of vessels in the United States, that their vessels be classified in the "American Lloyds Register," in order to secure for their vessels the best rates of insurance, and to obtain the benefit of the American Lloyds Universal Record, which is a book of reference for underwriters, containing a complete record of the movements of all vessels classified in the "American Lloyds Register." Parties can be supplied with copies of the American Lloyds Register, for 1871, by calling at our agency to me at the National Insurance Company, Boston.

TUESDAY JANUARY 16, 1872

THE ONE TERM PRINCIPLE.

The following extracts from Senator Conkling's recent speech on the proposed amendment providing that no person shall be eligible to a second term in the office of President of the United States, will be found interesting by those who wish to know the opinions of the statesmen of 1787 on this subject. After citing the fact that the "traitor and slaveholders forming a Confederacy, made the one term dogma a tenet of their faith," the speaker proceeded

I have here notes of debates in the Convention of 1787 set down by Mr Madison, and I read some passages touching the tenure of the President I commend them to the attention of the Senate The clause relating to the Executive being under consideration

Gouverneur Wilson (Pennsylvania) moved that the blank for the term of duration should be filled with three years, observing at the same time that he preferred the short period on the supposition that a re-eligibility would be provided for.

Mr Pinckney moved for seven years

Roger Sherman was for three years and against the doctrine of rotation as throwing out of office the best man qualified to execute its duties

The question being on the words, To be ineligible a second time," (seven years being the proposed term)

Mr. Houston (New Jersey) moved to strike out the clause

Mr. Sherman seconds the motion

Gouverneur Morris (Pennsylvania) opposed the motion The ineligibility proposed by the clause as it stood tended to destroy all incentives to good behavior, the hope of being elected by re-appointment It was a bridge to make hay while the sun shines

Mr Martin moved to retain the words, "ineligible a second time

Gouverneur Morris What effect will this have In the first place it will destroy the great incitement to merit public esteem, by taking away the hope of re-appointment — Hope, the universal cordial, the powerful opiate of the human breast The love of fame is the great spring to noble and illustrious actions Shut the civil road to glory and he may be compelled to seek it by military roads In the second place it will tempt the possessor in most of the short space of time allotted to him to accumulate wealth to support his friends In the third place it will produce violations of the very Constitution it is meant to secure In moments of pressing danger the tried abilities and established character of a favorite magistrate will prevail over respect for the forms of the Constitution

Elbridge Gerry Massachusetts did not like the ineligibility He thought there was great force in the remark of Mr. Sherman that he would be supposed himself most fit for an office and not to be excluded by the Constitution from a fitness for it He would, therefore prefer a rotation Is a valuable plan that should be substituted He was much disposed to think that a majority of the people at large would be in favor of it

Mr Paterson's New Jersey ideas nearly united he and with those of Mr Wilson

Mr Speight as Mr Williamson moved that seven years instead of four years for the term of the President

New Hampshire, Virginia and North Carolina voted aye Massachusetts Connecticut New Jersey Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland Georgia no

Mr Madison's comments on this proceeding are as follows —

An unlimited ineligibility would have followed, as it should seem from the vote not in favor of the full term, the prolongation of the term

It appears from the debates that a popular election and a term of four years was regarded as leaning too much to the side of liberty, with re-eligibility, and that an election by the Legislature and a long term of service with ineligibility to a second term, these were the alternative propositions which were to balance the popular election and a short term was substituted for a legislative election the short term with little or no weight was added to it any objections to be made against it, as giving to the people too great a power over those whose term was only four years "This may be seen from the following extracts from Mr Madison's report of the debates

Mr Martin was for seven years at least, and for prohibiting a re-eligibility as the best expedient both for preventing the effect of a popular election on the side of the Legislature and for rewarding meritorious characters, and a temptation to the Executive to intrigue for a reappointment

Mr Bedford was for a triennial election with a re-eligibility after a period of nine years

Mr Gerry If the Executive is to be chosen by the Legislature he certainly ought not to be re-eligible This would make him dependent

Mr Wilson It seems to be the unanimous opinion that the Executive should not be appointed by the Legislature unless he be rendered ineligible a second time He perceived with pleasure that the idea was gaining ground of an election immediately or immediately by the people

Sept 4 1787, the Committee of Eleven reported in favor of choosing the President by popular election through select electors and of making the whole term of the Executive four years instead of four as had been proposed and of making the term ineligible

Mr Sherman said the object of the clause in question was to get rid of the ineligibility which was attached to the mode of electing by the Legislature and to reconcile the opinions of those who favored the Legislature and those who favored the popular election

Gouverneur Morris said the wound given by the former decision could not be healed by the present one The next step the danger of intrigue and faction in the appointment should be made by the Legislature The next was the inconvenience of ineligibility required by that mode in rendering it a term of years, &c

What, then from our annals to falsify these concerted prophecies of our fathers? Why should we constantly libel ourselves? Have the sins and errors of Presidents, the wrongs and woes they have wrought the crimes against the people of which they have done or countenanced during second terms? Have illustrious statesmen characterized these chief magistrates alone who hold office but once? A brilliant constellation of deathless names spring up to answer the inquiry A President usurped the power to declare war A President planned and waged war upon a weak and defenceless people A President helped to enact the Fugitive Slave law of 1850, and a President signed it A President connived at the overthrow of the Missouri Compromise and sought to plant slavery in regions it had never trod A President tried to clutch Florida by force and fraud, and his Ministers signed the Ostend manifesto A President cowered with fear and forsook duty and oath when he might have strangled a treason that had defiled a tournament with blood A President trifled upon a race and turned his back on his country that he might exact concessions which raised the greatest financial crisis in his day Were these the deeds of Presidents who had been re elected? No sir not one of these actions was gravely thought of for a second term

The Tribune publishes a statement made by Stokes that the Fisk correspondence in the Herald is only the unimportant part, and that letters to be published will sustain all he has claimed relative to the correspondence The Boston Advertiser's New York special says the correspondence published by the Herald is not genuine, and is evidently got up to increase the feeling against Stokes.

The Providence Journal says 'Prince Gortschakoff does not conceal his irritation in his note to Minister Curtin relative to the Cataczay affair The growl of the bear how ever is hardly sufficient to elicit a scream of the eagle " It is have peace without Cataczay"

The Temperance Convention assembles at Augusta on Wednesday, and we understand that a large attendance is expected The subject of temperance reform will be earnestly considered and an effort made to render the laws more effective, but it is understood that the views of Gov. Perham will be allowed to prevail and only such measures proposed as will meet the approval of his judgment.

A despatch from Augusta to the Portland Star says Senator Hilbrill and Speaker Blaine have reconciled their differences relative to the Augusta Postal Agency Col. Stetson Conner is to have the Portland, while Col. M. Drew will be appointed from Androscoggin in Washington.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL

Duke Persigny died on Friday at Nice, France, aged 64 years.

Vice-President Schuyler Colfax has given up smoking

A campaign is going on for the Commandership of the G. A. R. of New York State, election next Wednesday. The candidates are Gen Woodford (Conkling) and Gen Barnum, (Fenton)

The Gloucester fishermen had a meeting at which a resolution was adopted asking Congress to grant a tonnage bounty, or some other relief, to their business, and a committee was appointed to present their views.

Gov. Washburn's message says that Wisconsin's debt is $2,250,000, the disbursements this year are estimated at $300,000 less than in 1871 He recommends legislation to prevent unjust discrimination by railroads, and favors a postal telegraph

An actual administration, says George William Curtis, is always at a disadvantage, because undeniable errors can be alleged against every administration, while a possible administration can be painted as bright as the lines of the imagination of the writer or speaker

The Senate of Massachusetts intends apparently to test the question whether passengers have any rights in respect of seats which a railroad company is bound to respect. The proper committee has been instructed to inquire into the expediency of passing a law under which passengers cannot be required to pay their fares until provided with seats.

Hon Wm B Allison, who is to succeed Mr Harlan as Senator for Iowa, is only forty-three years of age, a native of Ohio, by profession a lawyer, and for two or three terms a popular and most influential member of Congress A man of independent thought, and not adverse to expressing his opinions, he is a hearty supporter of President Grant, and in the next Congress is likely to be a leading exponent of the policy of the administration.

The Iowa Reform Leader published at Oskaloosa has been a Democratic organ, but now gives up the party It says

The bad record of 1872 consists not in the perpetuation of the traditional Democratic party nor in a 'passive policy,' which contemplates only a temporary waiving of that organization but in the permanent disbandment of the traditional Democratic party, and in the inauguration of a new movement'

The New Hampshire Republicans are rallying at the call of the State Convention, and are falling into the ranks with an alacrity that promises victory in March The excellent nomination for Governor will be strengthened by the wise selection of candidates for local offices and for the Legislature and the experience of the last election will not be lost upon the wide-awake and efficient party leaders The State has had one year of Democratic rule, and that should suffice for this decade

Perley of the Boston Journal says Secretary Belknap has sent to the House another budget of papers about Gen Howard, Gen Balloch and their accounts They only go to show what has been asserted in this correspondence for years past, that Gen Howard who is one of the best and most honest men living, has not conducted the financial affairs of the Freedmen's Bureau in accordance with army regulations, and has consequently exposed himself and his best friends to severe criticism

The N Y Tribune's Washington dispatch sorrowfully announces that the selection of Philadelphia as the place for holding the Republican National Convention is claimed by the friends of Gen Grant as a victory for themselves and they predict that he will be renominated almost without opposition on the 4th of June It is conjectured from the absence of Horace Greeley from the meeting of the Republican National Committee, of which he is a member, that he will not support Grant for the Presidency.

The recent sudden death of Isaac Rich, Esq of Boston, has deprived the Methodist Church of one of its most liberal and generous supporters His contributions to the various benevolent and educational interests of that denomination are said to exceed those of any other one man in New England

Mr John H Cosner the administrator of Colonel Fisk's estate says that Fisk's personal property amounts to scarcely $100 000, the lawyers and other luxuries having used up his ill-gotten gains

THE PRESIDENT AND THE NEW YORK CUSTOM HOUSE President Grant is reported as saying in regard to the alleged irregularities in the New York Custom House — 'My mind is clear upon one point Every officer under the administration who has been in any way connected with the irregularities in New York will be dismissed at once. It makes no difference if every man now holding office in New York should be dismissed I shall not wait for any report or resolution of the Senate nor even for absolute proof of overt acts I know how hard it is to prove overt acts The fact that officers have so demeaned themselves as to be open to suspicion or to bring scandal on the service, or to dissatisfy the large mercantile classes, is enough to justify a change Those Senators are no more anxious than I am to purify this service and I shall be glad to do my share in the work

A Washington paper until recently conspicuously hostile to the administration, also announces that it learns, from a source entitled to the highest credit, that if the Senate committee on investigation and retrenchment find the corruption of the New York Custom House such as the general public believes, General Grant will go to New York and make a clear sweep of the entire concern

The President also said that whoever is nominated for the Presidency will have his hearty support as a good Republican

TELEGRAPHIC The new operating room of the Western Union Telegraph Company at the principal office, No 145 Broadway N Y, was occupied Thursday afternoon It is beyond doubt the finest room of the kind in the country Four o clock was the hour appointed for the transfer of the operators to their new quarters, and quite a number of invited guests were on hand to witness the event. At 4 30 o clock President Orton called the company to order, the operators having a few minutes previously filed to their new stations, and in a few remarks opened the room for business. At thirty two minutes past four every man was at his work, and the change of offices was complete

THE TRICHINA CASES A Cleveland, O, dispatch says that Mrs Martin, the wife of the man who died a few days ago from trichinæ spiralis, has died from the same disease The boy, aged six years, is in a critical condition, the girls, aged four years, it is believed will recover The case creates great interest among medical men, and a large number of physicians and scientific men have visited the sick family

FROM UTAH A Salt Lake despatch of Sunday states that after a long conference with John Taylor and Geo Q. Cannon, leading Mormon Apostles, Attorney Bates left for Washington. It is believed that he is fully informed of the concessions which the Mormons are willing to make in order that Utah shall be admitted as a State, but Polygamy or not be given up. It is expected that the contest will be made upon an act prohibiting a religious institution, (so-called) from a State Constitution.

THE VIRGINIA DEBT A Richmond, Va, special says that a joint committee of the Legislature has agreed upon a bill repealing the present funding act and substituting a new system of funding the entire debt in coupon bonds, running 90 years, at 3 per cent. Interest for the first 30 years, 6 per cent. for the next 30 years, and 9 per cent. for the last 30 years. A proposition is pending in the committee for the repudiation of a portion of the debt. One-third is alleged to be due by West Virginia.

Warning Words.

The strength and nervous energy of the human body ought to be increased during the winter for two reasons In the first place diseases of the most deadly character may be generated at this season, and secondly it is of the utmost importance that during the cold weather months the system should be put in a condition to withstand the effects of the Spring Miasms, and the subsequent depressing heat of Summer It is therefore advisable, in fact essential, to tone, regulate and invigorate the digestive and secretive organs at this period of the year, and of all the stomachics and alteratives at present known, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the most powerful, the most harmless and the most agreeable The temperature of winter would be in itself glorious tonic if it did not, unfortunately, bring with it a volume of chilling moisture and unwholesome winds, which have a bad effect on the skin and lungs These must be guarded against, or there is no security for health The effect of a course of the Bitters is to give vigor and tone to the entire organization—the superficial muscles and nerves, as well as the internal viscera A regular habit of body, a healthy and natural flow of bile, an active digestion, a good appetite pure blood, and a vigorous circulation of that fluid, are among the blessings derivable from a persistent use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which not only more than supplies the place of the best tonics, purgatives and antiseptics prescribed in their separate forms by physicians, but performs the three-fold work of invigoration, regulation and purification, at one and the same time.

ETHER SPRAY IN EXTRACTION OF TEETH.

As many of my patients are continually asking to have the Ether Spray applied when they cease upon having teeth extracted, (for I affirm it to be exceedingly seldom that it is necessary to extract an aching tooth I am treating and permanently saving such every day) I have at considerable expense, procured the best and latest form of the apparatus with modern tubes, points, etc and am prepared to apply it under protest, to all who insist upon having it used I say "under protest" advisedly, since its secondary effects are liable to be of the most dangerous character and all who may have submitted to its use without unpleasant results yet there are many cases upon record where inflammation, ulceration, and sloughing have occurred, causing necrosis or death of the bone and necessitating in several instances, by a surgical operation the entire removal of the jaw, of course producing a most horrible deformity of the face Again, it is to a very great extent unreliable since it will produce couple of insensibility to pain in one mouth and not in another, while in another the pain is as acute as if not used For these reasons, as well as from the fact that such eminent men as Profs Truman and Barker, of Philadelphia and Atkinson of New York, together with others unite in condemning it as dangerous and unreliable I have heretofore refrained from using it, The demand however has become so frequent that I have felt constrained to procure the apparatus, and I will hereafter apply it to all who insist upon it after knowing just what its liabilities are As an anesthetic I very much prefer pure sulphuric Ether, as there has never been a single death from its use since the day of its introduction I am aware that this statement will surprise many, yet it is a fact and every prominent physician in Bangor or elsewhere, will confirm the statement I am aware that this of rum and nitrous oxide or laughing gas, there have been several instances of death even where no contra-indications were apparent

N B The use of the Ether Spray is not by any means a recent discovery, since it was generally used by dentists some ten years or more ago, and attended with the same results as those above named inconveniences and dangers It has its valuable application at the present day, but is not to be recommended for the purpose of extracting teeth, unless perhaps under circumstances of peculiar and rare occurrence

The News in New York!

The City Pulpit on Fisk, Jr.

REV. MR. HEPWORTH'S DEPARTURE!

A COSTLY PLACE TO DIE IN!

STOKES INDICTED FOR MURDER!

A SENSATIONAL SERMON—FISK'S LIFE REVIEWED FROM THE PULPIT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15 Rev J S. Willis, Methodist, preached a sensational sermon on the life and death of Fisk He said his life was a prodigy of contradictions His advancement like the magic of fable. Now an ignorant, stupid boy now a fantastic pedlar, now a Boston merchant, now leaping from bankruptcy to Wall street notoriety, throwing a panic over the money market by the most daring schemes known in the history of speculation now by subtile craft at the head of one of the largest railroad corporations in the world, conducting lawsuits involving millions, subsidizing Legislatures, conniving with statesmen and politicians, dazzling beauty and fashion with gew gaws, rivalling kings with gems toying with the fortunes and interests of communities plundered by his fraud confessed in guilty letters to a paramour and dying at the hands of an assassin, his conqueror in crime His life began in folly and ended in death. The only genuine scene was the closing, bloody tragedy His life was a lesson to those who follow the fascination of the glitter of money and the preacher held up as a warning

FISK AS A TEXT IN OTHER CHURCHES.

The Rev Merrill Richardson Congregationalist alluded to Fisk and other crimes as growing out of loose public sentiment say he it was the duty of the press and pulpit to educate the masses to better things Rev Mr Brackett, Baptist, advocated gentle admonition to erring brothers, warned young men of the career and death of Fisk Un this Belgerate day a man may roll in wealth and corruption and not have an idea, but it is all right

MR. HEPWORTH'S NEW DEPARTURE—WHAT THE UNITARIANS SAY

An immense crowd filled Steinway Hall to hear Rev George H Hepworth, yesterday He preached a sermon from the text "The Lord one Faith, one Baptism," urging all Christians to stand shoulder to shoulder in one faith to work for the salvation of souls forgetting all minor differences In a printed address circulated among the audience, it was announced that a new church is to be established under the title of "The Church of the Disciples."

Rev W F Clark, Unitarian, denounced Mr Hepworth, saying that two-thirds of the Unitarian Ministers are glad of Hepworth's departure

THE FLORIDA CASE

The Spanish Minister will, it is said, be furnished with a copy of the affidavit of the captain of the Florida, in order that he may make a response on his side as a preliminary to further action. Confidence is expressed in official quarters that Spain will promptly make the required amends.

THE LEGAL TENDER DECISION—CONSTITUTIONALITY AFFIRMED.

In the Supreme Court to-day, Associate Justice Strong delivered the opinion of the Court affirming the constitutionality of the legal tender act of Congress—Justices Swayne, Davis, Miller and Bradley concurring. The last named read his views on our issuance of the question. Chief Justice Chase delivered a dissenting opinion for himself and Justices Field, Clifford and Nelson. The terms on the same side were read by Justices Clifford and Field. Judge Hanson was absent.

THE OPINION OF THE COURT

Justice Strong delivered the opinion of the Supreme Court in the legal tender cases to-day, substantially as follows.

The debts contracted since Feb 25, 1862, are by far the greatest portion of the indebtedness of the country. They were contracted in view of the acts of Congress declaring Treasury notes a legal tender, and in reliance upon that declaration No well founded distinction can be made between the constitutional validity of the act of Congress declaring Treasury notes legal tender for the payment of debts contracted after its passage and that authorizing their legal tender for the payment of all debts. There may be a difference in the effects produced by the acts and in the hardships of their operation, but in both cases the fundamental question which tests the validity of legislation is can Congress constitutionally give to the Treasury notes the character and qualities of money, and can such notes be constituted a legitimate circulating medium? Having defined the legal value, a lengthy examination of the rules of constitutional construction is made, and the conclusion is that Congress has authority in all cases to enact laws necessary and proper for the execution of all powers created by the Constitution, and that the necessity spoken of is within the judgment and discretion of Congress It is determined that one of the duties of the Government is to preserve itself, and that this Government is possessed of all the necessary powers to that end and if it were certain nothing else would supply the absolute necessities of the Treasury—if nothing else would have enabled the Government to maintain its armies and navy—if nothing else would have saved the Government and Constitution from dissolution, while the legal tender act would—it cannot be said that Congress transgressed its power in the enactment of those laws, or if these enactments did work this result, it can not be maintained now that they were not for a legitimate end, and appropriate and adapted to that end That they did work such results cannot be doubted, and if it be conceded that some other means might have been chosen for the accomplishment of the same necessary object, the argument is not weakened by the concession Congress had the choice of means, and if those a sufficient and proper one, as it had a right to do. The grant to Congress of power to coin money cannot be regarded as containing an implied prohibition against the issue of legal tender notes and if it raises any implications, they are of complete power over the currency, rather than restraining The objection that the legal tender act impairs the obligations of contracts, cannot be accepted, for it is not an obligation of a debtor to pay gold or silver as to contracts, but to pay money generally, not contracts to pay specifically defined money or the kind of money recognized by the law at the time when the contract was made, nor is it his duty to pay money of equal intrinsic value in the market.

The expectation of the creditor and the anticipation of the debtor may have been that the contract would be discharged by the payment of a coined metal, but neither the expectation of the other constitutes its obligation The obligation of a contract to pay money, is to pay that which the law shall recognize as money when the payment is to be made If there is anything to be set led by decision, it is this, and it cannot be understood to be controverted As to the objection that legal tender acts were prohibited by the constitutional provision prohibiting the taking of private property for public use without just compensation it is said that the provision has always been understood to refer only to direct appropriations and not to consequential injuries resulting from the exercises of lawful power The objection that the unit money value must possess intrinsic value, is regarded as foreign to the subject The legal tender acts do not attempt to make a standard of value. Their validity is not vested upon the assertion that their emissions is coinage, or any regulation of the value of money, nor is it asserted that Congress has power to enact that the Government's promises to pay money shall be for the time being equivalent in value to the representative of value determined by the coinage acts as to the multiples thereof This decision overrules so much of what was decided in the Hepburn vs Griswold case as ruled the legal tender acts unwarranted by the constitution so far as they apply to the contracts made before the enactment. Justice Bradley read a lengthy opinion concurring in the conclusions of Strong Chief Justice, and Justices Clifford and Field, all the dissenting Justices except Nelson, who was not present, read dissenting opinions setting forth at great length the minority views, with which the country is familiar, as having been the opinion of the Court in the former decision of the legal tender question No other opinions were delivered The Chief Justice announced that the Court would not sit to morrow, but would be engaged in conference.

THE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE

expect to report the Legislative, Executive and Judiciary appropriation bill to the House on Wednesday next; others will soon follow It seems to be the general disposition among Republicans to transact all public business so that Congress may adjourn before the meeting of the National Republican Convention

FORTY SECOND CONGRESS SECOND SESSION

WASHINGTON, D C, Jan. 15

SENATE.

Mr Goldthwaite of Ala., was sworn in — The galleries were crowded with colored people to hear Mr Sumner on his supplementary civil rights bill

Several petitions were presented, among them two from Vermont for free salt and one from the Chinese in California for free rice

A joint resolution that the Ku Klux Committee immediately investigate affairs in Louisiana was offered but was laid over till the return of Senator West

Mr Chandler, from Committee, reported a bill to promote the construction of the Cincinnati and Southern Railway The following bills were introduced By Mr Wilson—Authorizing the President to appoint a pay master general of the army By Mr Scott allowing an outfit and yearly allowance of clothing to petty officers, seamen, &c, of the navy

The supplementary civil rights bill came up Mr Sumner delivered a long speech in favor of it, claiming that slavery in a disguised form still existed and that this bill would give to colored people the rights they are entitled to.

Mr Vickers said he would not undertake to answer Mr Sumner's speech on his supplementary civil rights bill, because it required no argument to demonstrate the gross unconstitutionality of that measure. He then read a long argument in favor of the pending general amnesty bill The Senate then held an executive session and adjourned

HOUSE

Several bills were introduced and referred, among them the following —To repair the Custom House at Bath, Me; to remove all legal and political disabilities incurred during the late rebellion, to repeal the tenure of office act, for the improvement of the harbors of Bridgeport and Westport, Conn., to particlase a bust of Farragut for the Capitol, to admit tea and coffee free after next July

The bill of Mr Hale of Me., in reference to ships and shipbuilding was debated ten minutes and went over without action.

A resolution was adopted ordering a special Committee on the Louisiana legislative troubles

A bill for general amnesty was introduced by Acker of Pennsylvania, and rejected by the House by a vote of 106 to 93—not two-thirds in the affirmative.

The House rejected another bill for general amnesty introduced by Mr. Dawes of Mass, yeas, 131; nays, 70; lack than two-thirds in the affirmative. Another amnesty bill, being the one passed by the House last session, was introduced by Mr. Hale of Me., and passed; yeas, 170; nays, 51, excepts members of Congress and officers of the army and navy who joined the rebellion.

Mr. Pierce of R. I., from the Committee on Judiciary, reported back, recommending a bill to disabuse the political disabilities of persons who participated in the rebellion, which was ordered to be printed and recommitted.

Mr. Cox of N. Y., offered a resolution calling for the unpublished correspondence relating to the admission of Mr. G. Jackson, a Virginia claimant, which was adopted, and the House adjourned.

FAST DRIVER FINED About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a young man from a neighboring town, having two Bangor men in his sleigh, drove up Exchange street at a rattling pace, and taking the sidewalk at Rice & Leathers' corner kept on up Harlow street, narrowly missing running over a lot of small children on their way to school Officer McLaughlin endeavored to stop them, but they paid no attention to him and kept on across Central bridge, still driving very rapidly The officer at once informed the City Marshal, who took his team and started in pursuit, and in less than an hour the wild driver was arraigned in the Police Court and fined $15 and costs of prosecution for his reckless proceeding When he comes to Bangor again he will doubtless keep his team off the sidewalks and drive at a more moderate pace

GRAND CONCERT. Mr L A Torreens announces in another column a grand vocal and instrumental concert, to be given in Norombega Hall Monday evening, 29th inst. The array of talent engaged cannot fail to fill the hall Mrs. West (nee Miss Houston) first appeared in this city, we believe, at the great Musical Convention in April, 1865, and has ever since been a great favorite here. Mrs. Crowell, Mrs. Waagatt and Mrs. Dame need no word of commendation from us, as their ability is well known in this section of the State. Messrs. Packard and Sprague have sung here many times, and are always warmly received. The oratorio chorus class has been in constant rehearsal since the first of last month, under Mr. Torrens' direction, and displays a commendable proficiency in the most difficult music. The sale of tickets commences at Duren's bookstore next Friday morning, and we predict that there will be a rush for them

A PLEASANT PARTY About sixty gentlemen and ladies of this city took advantage of the excellent sleighing yesterday afternoon and enjoyed a very pleasant ride to Dedham Phillips capacious house was filled to overflowing by the party from Bangor but still there was a warm welcome and plenty of room for a dozen or more faom Ellsworth, who arrived shortly after Music dancing, a good supper, and fun generally was the order until a late hour admonished the party that the time for leaving had come It is impossible to narrate all the wonderful things that happened, how somebody's horse accidentally escaped and came half way home without a driver, or how many were needed to catch the horse that took to the fields, or just how many turkeys the fat gentleman ate, or how many it took to wait upon him, or who danced the strongest, or which young lady was the handsomest But of all the marvellous things that transpired, the most marvellous was how that horse happened to lose his shoe at just the wrong time, cruelly detaining an interesting couple for more than an hour, when everybody knew they were so sorry about it and so anxious to get there early — We safely say that a jollier party never enlivened that hotel, and we believe that every person came away with pleasant recollections of the affair.

SO GOES THE WORLD.

Our years fly days on and on,
Our hopes fade unfulfilled away,
And things which seem to be life of life
Are taken from us day by day;
And yet through all the long years,
The course of pleasure seems to bring;
The poorest play, the showiest gaude,
And guess that the whole day long,

And so the world goes on.

Our little dramas come to naught;
Our love may fall, our darling plan
May crumble into nothingness;
Our fairest castle lad to sand,
And yet the children sing and dance,
The money-maker laugh and shout,
The stars unmindful, still shine bright,
Unconscious that our light is out,

And so the world goes on.

The home grows sad that once was gay,
The door once sent their friends Home
And we may watch and wait in vain
To hear their well-known footsteps come
And yet the sunlight checks the floor,
And makes the summer shadows long,
The rosebuds at the casement bloom,
The birds pours forth his cheerful song,

And so the world goes on.

And God goes on, and with our woe
We strew golden threads of joy and peace,
Weaving with His heart of hearts
Our days of pain, our days of ease,
He marks them all—the sad, the sheaves,
The dangers—sadly the mourner's tears
Not drops them safe His children all,
Through all the great eternal years,

And so, thank God, the world goes on.

THE BURIED TREASURE.

BY MM. ERCKMANN-CHATRIAN.

One night in the month of September, 1828, Eli Bach, the worthy and respectable bookseller of the Rue Neuhausser, Munich, awoke suddenly and in astonishment, at hearing footsteps in the garret over his chamber—somebody was pacing to and fro in trouble of mind; one of the flat sky-lights in the roof was opened, and long-drawn sighs were breathed into the silence.

At that moment the clock of the Jesuits' chapel struck one, and underneath Monsieur Furbach's bed-room, horses clattered and stamped in their stable.

The garret was occupied by the coachman, Nicklausse, a tall, good-humored fellow from Pocherland, dry, wiry, an excellent manager of horses, and not without education, having had some little schooling at the seminary of Marienthal; but unpremeditated and superstitious to such a degree that he constantly carried about with him, under his shirt, a small, bronze cross, which he kissed every morning and evening, though he was over thirty years of age.

Monsieur Furbach listened a while after the skylight was closed, the footsteps were stilled, the coachman's bed creaked, and all was silent.

"Ay, ay," said the old bookseller, "the moon's in the full, tonight. Nicklausse is heating himself about the street and lamenting his sins, poor devil!"

And without further troubling himself with the matter, he turned down in his bed and composed himself to sleep again.

Next morning, about seven o'clock, Monsieur Furbach, his feet in his slippers, was quietly taking his breakfast, preparatory to descending to his shop, when two little taps sounded on his door.

"Come in!" he cried, considerably surprised at receiving so early a visit.

The door opened and Nicklausse appeared, dressed in a gray blouse, his head covered with a wide-brimmed mountaineer's felt hat, and his hand clutching a stout wild apple; judged, just as he had prevented himself on first arriving from his village. He was very pale.

"Monsieur Furbach, said he, "I've come to ask you to give me my discharge. Thank Heaven! I'm at last going to be at ease, and able to help my grandmother Orchel, of Vangebourg."

"Have you come in for an inheritance?" asked the old bookseller.

"No Monsieur Furbach, I've had a dream. I dreamed of a treasure, between twelve and one o'clock, and I am going to lay my hand on it!"

The good fellow spoke with so much conviction that Monsieur Furbach was completely taken aback.

"You've had a dream, eh?" he said.

"Yes, Monsieur. I've seen the treasure as plainly as I see you, in a very large vaulted vault, in an old castle. There was the figure of a knight, nobleman lying above it with joined hands, and a large iron pot on his head."

"But where was it, Nicklausse?"

"Ah! that I don't know. I shall first go in search of the castle, then I shall find the vault and the crowns. The vault goes fifteen cubic feet long; I seem to see them now!"

The eyes of Nicklausse glittered in a strange fashion.

"Come, come, my poor Nicklausse—come, come!" cried the bookseller; "be reasonable. Sit down. A dreamer very well, very well. In the time of Joseph, I don't say that dreams couldn't have meant something; but at this time of day things are different. Everybody dreams. I myself have dreamt a hundred times of riches, but, unfortunately, I have never found them. Think of what you are about; you are going to give up your place, to run after a castle which, perhaps, never existence."

"I have seen it," said the coachman. "It is a big castle, rolling and round; below it there is a village, a forge, a steep, winding road, a very old church. Many people still live in this part of the country, and a large river flows near."

"You've dreamed the whole of it, I've no doubt," said Monsieur Furbach, shrugging his shoulders.

A moment later, wishing to bring the man back to reason by some means or other, he demanded:—

"Your vault—what was that like?"

"It resembled an oven."

"And you went down into it with a light, no doubt?"

"No, Monsieur."

"But if you had no light, how could you see the coffers, the ingots, and the pieces of gold?"

"They were lighted by a ray of the moon."

"Come, your castle vault does the moon shine in a vault? Your dream is so absurd, common sense."

Nicklausse began to lose his temper. He restrained himself, however, and said:

"I've seen it. I care nothing about all the rest; and, as to the knight, there it is!" he added, opening his blouse, there it was!

He drew from his breast the little bronze cross as he spoked from a ribbon, and laid it on the table with an air of resolve.

Monsieur Furbach, who was a great amateur of medals and antiquities, was surprised at the strange and truly primeval workmanship of this precious relic. He examined it closely, and discovered that it belonged to the eleventh century. In place of the effigy of the Savior, on the center limb was represented a high relief, the figure of a knight with hands joined in the attitude of prayer. No date was upon it.

During this examination, Nicklausse anxiously followed the bookseller's every gesture.

"It's very beautiful," said Monsieur Furbach, "and I shouldn't be altogether astonished at your having it until you have come to believe it represented a knight keeping guard over a treasure; but, trust me, the true treasure to be looked after is that of the Cross. As for the rest isn't worth talking about."

Nicklausse returned no answer; only after he had passed the ribbon over his neck, he said:—

"I shall go—the holy Virgin will enlighten me. When Heaven wishes to do good to us we ought to profit by it. You have always treated me well, Monsieur Furbach, it is true; but Heaven commands me to be gone. It is, besides, time for my poor mother; and I have seen there, in my dream, a young girl who seemed born expressly to become my wife."

"In what direction are you going?" asked the bookseller, who couldn't help smiling at such simplicity.

"Whatever direction the wind blows from," replied Nicklausse; "that's the surest way."

"You are quite decided?"

"Yes, monsieur."

"Very well; then we must settle your account. I am sorry to lose so good a servant; but I have no right to hinder you in following your vocation."

They descended together to the counting-house, and, after consulting his books, Monsieur Furbach counted out to Nicklausse two hundred and fifty Austrian florins, the accumulation for his savings, with interest, for six years. After which the worthy man wished him good speed, and saw himself to look out for another coachman.

For a long time the old bookseller related this strange story, laughing heartily at the simplicity of the folks of Pocherland, and recommending them to his friends and acquaintances as excellent new waits.

Some years later, Monsieur Furbach having married his daughter, Mademoiselle Anna Furbach, to the rich bookseller, Rubenock, of Leipsic, retired from business. But he had uniformly contracted the habit of working, that, in spite of being sixty years of age, inaction very soon became insupportable to him. It was then that he made several journeys in to Italy, France and Belgium.

In the early autumn days of 1826 he visited the banks of the Rhine. He was a little, heavy old man, with red cheeks and a carriage still firm. He was to be seen almost always on the deck of the steamer, his nose in the air, his overcoat tightly buttoned, an umbrella under his arm and a silk cap drawn over his ears, chatting and asking about everything, taking notes, and freely consulting his guide-book.

One morning, between Frisenheim and Neuburg, after having spent the night in the cabin of the dampfschiff, in company with thirty other passengers—women, children, tourists, tradesmen—heaped upon the benches, Monsieur Furbach, happy to escape from such a vapor-bath, went upon deck at break of day.

It was about four o'clock in the morning, and a heavy mist hung upon the river. The steam roared, the vessel chopped slowly along, a few distant lights trembled in the mist, and at times great noises arose amid the darkness; but dominating all was the voice of old Rhine, recounting the eternal legend of the generations which had passed away, the crimes, the exploits, the grandeur and the fall of those ancient margraves whose lairs were becoming distinguishable in the awakening light.

Leaning thoughtful-eyed against the side of the vessel, the old bookseller saw these memories defile before him. The stoker and the engineer moved about him; some sparks flew into the air; a lantern swung at the end of its cord; the breeze threw jets of spray before it. Other passengers glided like shadows up from the cabin.

Monsieur Furbach having turned his head, perceived a dark mass of ruins on the right bank of the stream, and a number of small houses, ranged step-like at the foot of vast ramparts; a flying bridge swept the frothy river with its long, dragging rope.

He went under the lantern, opened his guide-book and read: "Vieux Brisach Brisacum and Brisiacus mons, founded by Drusus; formerly the capital of Brisgau, passed for being one of the strongest towns in Europe; the key of Germany. Bernard V. de Zoehringen built the fortified castle. Frederic Barbarossa caused the relic of Saint Gervais and Saint Protais to be transported there, into the church of Saint Etienne. Gustave Horn, a Swede, tried to take it in 1638, after having gained great advantages over the imperialists; he failed. Brisach was ceded to France by the treaty of Westphalia, it was given back at the peace of Ruyswick, in exchange for Strasbourg. It was burnt by the French in 1703; its fortifications were demolished in 1801."

"So," said he to himself, "this is the old Brisach of the Counts of Eberstein, of Osgau, of Zoehringen, of Suabia and of Austria. I can't go by that without seeing it."

A few moments later he descended, with his luggage, from the steamer into a boat, and the dampfschiff continued her passage toward Bale.

There is, not perhaps, on either bank of the Rhine, a site more strange than the ancient capital of Brisgau, with its dismantled castle, its thousand colored walls of brown rubble and mud, planted fifteen or sixteen hundred feet above the stream. It is no longer a town, and yet it is not a ruin. The dead old town is overrun by hundreds of rustic cottages, that press upon its flanks, scale its bastions and hang on to its fissures, into which the hungry and tattered population cut their way, like goats and mosquitoes, and the thousand insects with nippers and borers, that take up their lodgings in old oaks, and spit, dry up and reduce them to powder.

Above thatched roofs, ranged against the ramparts, still stands the gate of the fortress, with its sculptured coat of arms, its portcullis and drawbridge. Wide breaches allow the lierre to stream down by the side of it; ursamble, moss, and ivy join their destructive efforts to those of men! All is falling, all is passing away!

Vine-stems have taken possession of the embrasures, the goatherd and his goats boldly place themselves on the corniches, and strange to see, the women of the village, the girls and old gossips put their faces out from a thousand holes made in the castle walls; every cellar of the old fortress has been turned into a commodious dwelling-place; all that was to be done was to put skylights and windows into the ramparts. Shirts, red or blue gowns, all the rags in fact of these households, are seen fluttering in the air from their summits. Above all, still stand a few solid edifices, gardens, large oaks, and the Cathedral of Saint Etienne, so much venerated by Barbarossa.

Throw over all these objects the gray tints of morning twilight, unroll below the scarcely visible expanse of the roaring river, picture to yourself rows of barrels and boxes on the broad stones of the jetty, and you will realize the impression made upon Monsieur Furbach, on setting foot on the shore.

FOR SALE

OF GOOD

Timber Land

For Sale at a Low Rate,

Situated on Moose River, in the town of Greig, Lewis County, New York.

Sand timber consisting of White Hemlock, Spruce, Pine and Hardwood. The subscribers own two large townships, located on Moose River, which will consume the hemlock bark, thus enabling the land and timber to be purchased at a comparatively cheap rate. The timber is uniform and fine in all particulars. The aforesaid tract of land is easy of access, being only from six to fifteen miles from both the Black and Moose River Lumber Mills, and has had direct to the Albany Market. The land is comparatively level, well watered and good for farming purposes. Moose River, which runs through the tract, is a large stream and empties into Black River, which is navigable and connects with the Erie Canal at the junction of the rivers. In all falls of sixty (60) feet, over which the waters of both rivers flow, thus forming an unlimited water power, two mills are now in the Canal and at the Depot, to which Moose River will carry the immense amount of timber from the aforesaid lands.

Any parties desiring to manufacture lumber will do well to give this rare opportunity their attention. The land and timber can be purchased at a cheap rate or the timber alone, permitted.

75,000 Acres

OF GOOD

Timber Land

For Sale at a Low Rate,

Situated on Moose River, in the town of Greig, Lewis County, New York.

Sand timber consisting of White Hemlock, Spruce, Pine and Hardwood. The subscribers own two large townships, located on Moose River, which will consume the hemlock bark, thus enabling the land and timber to be purchased at a comparatively cheap rate. The timber is uniform and fine in all particulars. The aforesaid tract of land is easy of access, being only from six to fifteen miles from both the Black and Moose River Lumber Mills, and has had direct to the Albany Market. The land is comparatively level, well watered and good for farming purposes. Moose River, which runs through the tract, is a large stream and empties into Black River, which is navigable and connects with the Erie Canal at the junction of the rivers. In all falls of sixty (60) feet, over which the waters of both rivers flow, thus forming an unlimited water power, two mills are now in the Canal and at the Depot, to which Moose River will carry the immense amount of timber from the aforesaid lands.

Any parties desiring to manufacture lumber will do well to give this rare opportunity their attention. The land and timber can be purchased at a cheap rate or the timber alone, permitted.

THE CELEBRATED

HOME STOMACH BITTERS

ARE ENDORSED AND PRESCRIBED BY MORE leading Physicians than any other Tonic or Stimulant now in use. They are

A SURE PREVENTIVE

For Fever and Ague, Intermittents, Biliousness and all disorders arising from malarious causes. They are high ly recommended as an ANTI-DYSPEPTIC, for cases of INDIGESTION are INVALUABLE. As an APPETIZER and STRENGTHENER, and in cases of GENERAL DEBILITY they have never, in a single instance, failed in producing the most happy results. They are particularly

BENEFICIAL TO FEMALES,

Strengthening the body, invigorating the mind, and giving tone and elasticity to the whole system. The HOME BITTERS are compounded with the greatest care, and no tonic stimulant has ever before been offered to the public so PLEASANT TO THE TASTE and so free from the combining so many remedial agents endorsed by the medical faculty as the best known to the Pharmacopoeia. It costs but little to give them a fair trial, and Every Family Should Have a Bottle.

No preparation in the world can produce so many unqualified endorsements by physicians of the very highest standing in their profession.

Endorsed also by the Clergy and the leading denominational papers.

UNITED STATES MARINE HOSPITAL,
Louisville, Ky., Oct. 6, 1870.

JAMES A. JACKSON & CO.—I have carefully examined the formula for making the "Home Stomach Bitters," and used them in this hospital. He has four months. I consider them the most valuable tonic and stimulant now in use.

S. H. MELCHER,
Resident Physician in charge U. S. Marine Hospital.

JAMES A. JACKSON & CO.—Gentlemen: As you have communicated to the medical profession the recipe of the "Home Bitters", it cannot, therefore, be considered as a patent medicine, no patent having been taken for it. We have examined the formula for making the "Home Bitters," and unhesitatingly say the combination is one of rare excellence, all the articles used in its composition are the best of the class to which they belong, being highly tonic Stimulant, Stomachic, Carminative, and slightly Laxative. The mode of preparing them is strictly in accordance with the rules of pharmacy. Having used them, and seen its effects in our private practice, we take pleasure in recommending them to all persons desirous of taking Bitters, as being the best Tonic and Stimulant now offered to the public.
